

FRANK LESLIE ROBERTSON.

private Robertson, aged 22, 6th Battalion, B Company, was born in Prahran, and attended school in Albury and Rutherglen. He was the second son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Robertson, 50 Napier street, Fitzroy. Private Robertson, who was one of the first to enlist, belonged to the Boys' Brigade connected with the local Presbyterian Church, and was a member of the Collingwood Highland Society. He was a corporal-bugler upon enlistment, but gave up the bugle for the rifle. He was employed at the Commonwealth Clothing Factory on St. Kilda road. Mr. Robertson (who for a number of years was engaged on "The Argus" composing staff) has another son, Bugler James George Robertson, 18, 23rd Battalion, D Company, at the front, and Mrs. Robertson's brother, Gideon Dare, is also there. Her cousin, Sergeant Thomas Barrett (Bendigo), was among the killed, and Stanley Barrett, a brother of Thomas's, is at the Dardanelles.
