

BOYS' BRIGADE AFFAIRS FINALISED

The affairs of the Hobart Boys' Brigade, which has been in recess for 30 years, were finalised in Hobart last night, when some of the foundation members decided to distribute the £60 in the funds.

The brigade was formed in 1904 to look after neglected children and provide them with amenities.

It met for the last time in 1919, and since then has been virtually defunct.

In addition to two foundation members of the brigade at last night's meeting were some personnel who helped in its formation.

It was decided to distribute the funds between the Tasmanian branch of the Royal Life-Saving Society and the Salvation Army Boys' Home at New Town.
